Inspiring and empowering people every day.

Too many people are afraid of getting out there and not being good right away.

Something to think about: What singles out the successful person from the ones who never make it past a plateau, is that successful people risk failure, even though they are terrified.

Something to do now: What are you afraid of? What do you want to accomplish? What is holding you back? What are you waiting for? No more worrying what other people think. Write down what you are going to start to accomplish.

Thought For The Week:
If you aren't pushing yourself,
why push at all?
